SEARCH PARTY

… we make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon, and the stars.
– Shakespeare[1]

[1] William Shakespeare, "King Lear," Three Tragedies. (New York: Scholastic, 1970).

"This is an Arrow Pointing To…". Along with using the familiar, everyday symbol of the arrow, Lexier cleverly exploits the composite system of a space to guide viewers and make them aware of their positions in the gallery. Regardless of the positioning, This is an arrow… provides an optional and potentially misdirecting navigation pattern that coincides with and contests other forms of circulation in